Appendix D

Public Access to the Toxics Release Inventory and Related Information

EPA makes the Toxics Release Inventory (TRI) and other related information available to the public both electronically and in hard copy. Every year, EPA enhances its databases to make the data easier to access and search and expands its outreach activities to include new potential users of the data. In May 2002, EPA released a number of enhancements to the TRI Explorer that greatly increased the ability of users to access TRI data (<http://www.epa.gov/triexplorer/whatsnew.htm>). In addition to the TRI Explorer, the TRI data are available in a wide variety of computer and hard copy formats to meet most user's needs. TRI publications can be obtained from EPA. TRI data can also be accessed online at EPA's web site, <http://www.epa.gov/tri/tridata/tri01>.

State officials also receive TRI reports from facilities in their jurisdiction, and many states publish reports highlighting state and local trends. Tables D-1 through D-3 highlight the products and services available from the above mentioned resources as well as several others.

On-line Service	Web Address/Contact Information
U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> EPA Home Page Toxics Release Inventory (TRI) Home Page TRI Explorer—EPA created the TRI Explorer to provide access to TRI data that is both easy to understand and flexible to use. The TRI Explorer will generate on- and off-site release reports for facilities, chemicals, geographic areas, or industry type (SIC code) at the county, state, and national level. TRI 2001 Data Release Page—provides access to information relating to the 2001 TRI data release. It includes press materials, data summary information, questions and answers, and other information about 2001 TRI data. EPA Envirofacts—provides access to TRI data. Provides user defined searches of the TRI database by facility name, geographic location, SIC Code, or chemical name and produces reports on the facilities and maps their locations. A variety of user specified parameters let users point and click to customize their searches. 	http://www.epa.gov http://www.epa.gov/tri/ http://www.epa.gov/triexplorer/ http://www.epa.gov/tri/tridata/tri01 http://www.epa.gov/enviro/html/toxic_releases.html
TOXNET®, the National Library of Medicine's (NLM) Toxicology Data Network, provides free access to TRI data. Users can search by chemical or other name, chemical name fragment, or Chemical Abstracts Service Registry Number. Also searchable are facility or parent company name, state, city, county, or zip code. Search results can be limited to releases greater than a specified number of pounds, and individual releases can be summed together to display a total amount.	http://toxnet.nlm.nih.gov/
Right-to-Know Network (RTK Net) is operated by two nonprofit organizations (OMB Watch and the Center for Public Data Access). RTK Net provides free access to TRI data and enables users to search by geographic area, facility, industry, parent company, or off-site waste transfer.	http://rtknet.org/
EPA's Integrated Risk Information System (IRIS) is an electronic database containing information on human health effects that may result from exposure to various chemicals in the environment. IRIS was initially developed for EPA staff in response to a growing demand for consistent information on chemical substances for use in risk assessments, decision-making and regulatory activities. The information in IRIS is intended for those without extensive training in toxicology, but with some knowledge of health sciences.	http://www.epa.gov/iris
